

Limping on Cloud 9 is a podcast where Hammad Zaidi, a guy with a disability, shares his magical journey with Jonathan Nadeau, his blind friend.

Message from Hammad Zaidi:

I'm a ridiculously lucky kid-at-heart who has realized most of my childhood dreams. I said "most," not all. I'm still short, with no Academy Award, and my beloved UCLA Bruins football team hasn't won a national title since 1954. Oh yeah, I'm also disabled, and becoming a card-carrying member of the brotherhood of the physically challenged is the single luckiest event I've ever experienced in my life.

My podcast is at www.LimpingonCloud9.com, iTunes, Google Play, Stitcher Radio and many other outlets. We launched in January, yet we're already tracking at 200,000 verified hits per month on www.Limpingoncloud9.com and www.GoingBionic.com. Thus our reach is far greater when combined with iTunes, Google Play, Stitcher etc.

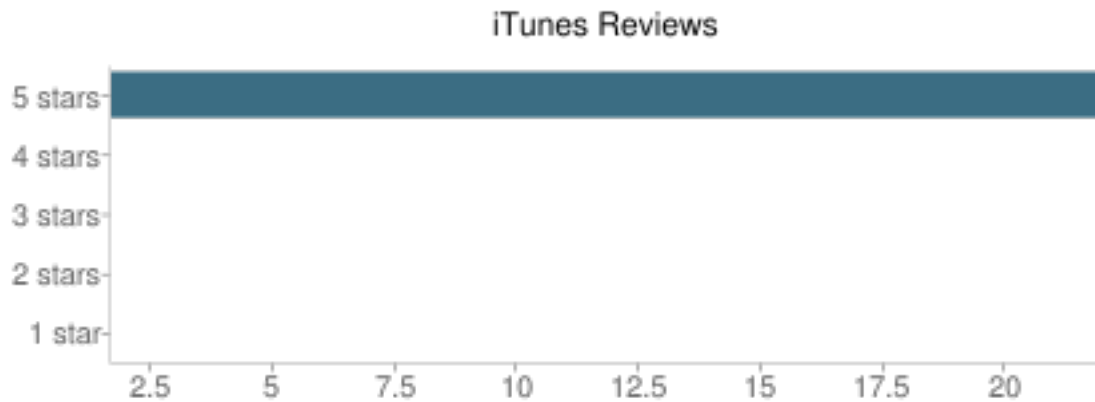

Below is a collection of some of our reviews from iTunes, Stitcher and my websites. Thank you for lending me your eyes and ears!

by UnknownSoldier44 on Jan 05, 2017

RATING: ★★★★★

I don't usually write reviews, or listen to podcasts. This changed all that. I've heard 5 or 6 so far, and I'm digging it. My fav so far is "Racism, Guns and Mirrors" and "How a Dying Man Taught Me How to Live at a Killer Concert," but all of them are a worthy listen. Check 'em out!

I go to work before the sun does, and so I'm usually half asleep on my drive in. But, this crazy little podcast keeps me alert and engaged on my way to work. It's funny, a bit off beat, and yet it fills my early mornings with an appropriate dose of sunshine. In other words, I'm all in.

Short and Super Sweet!

If you are looking for a quick, painless pick-me-up on the way to work or during lunch, look no further. Most episodes are under 20 mins, and all of the ones I've listened to (so far about 6), have been far more interesting than I expected! Very cool stuff!

Unique, Nostalgic, Compelling and Funny

This is a podcast I soon won't forget!

I listen to a handful of podcasts, but none quite this oddly positive one. I love listening to a guy with a disability talk to his blind friend about slices of life. These guys are so funny - even if they laugh at themselves along the way. I love the nostalgia, and I'm envious of the "Forrest Gump" like experiences this Hammad guy has. Bravo H & J! Keep it up!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Oasis of good karma wrapped into a bite size show!

This wonderfully out-of-the-box podcast "limped" onto to my Stitcher feed, and I've given it a permanent home ever since. Hammad and Jonathan are easy to listen to, and their content is remarkably engaging. "Limping on Cloud 9" is an oasis of good karma wrapped into a bite size podcast. You have to give it a listen!

Poignancy, clarity and a bit of lunacy!

I can't get enough of this show, because Hammad and Jonathan's perspectives on life are so uncanny and fresh. I'd personally freak out if I had a disability or was blind, but the guys make the abnormal seem amazingly normal - which is so, so. try cool!

unforgettable slices of life!

This podcast just doesn't get boring. It helps that they're all on the shorter side, but it's cool 'because they're jam-packed with great stories and unforgettable slices of life!

I can't disagree w/all the other 5-star reviews

I like how pure, thoughtful and warmly executed this show is. I know that will change when the masses discover it (which they certainly will) - but I'm absorbing these early stages!

The kid from "Lion" should play young Hammad in the movie version, cuz there will be one. this podcast is too weird not to be a semi-freakish, ultra cool movie. I can already see it. Now all they have to do is make it

I Love, Love, Love, Love, Love this show.

I don't like writing reviews, but I wanted to get the word out on this show. This Hammad guy should have his own church, much less a podcast. Don't get me wrong - this IS NOT a religious podcast - but Hammad (and Jonathan) are so inspiring! I can't get enough!

Inspirational Life Coaching From an Original Gangster!

Hammad, I know nothing about your professional life. We met under totally non-professional circumstances and at that time I thoroughly enjoyed our conversations about almost everything except work. I enjoyed this podcast as you again have done a wonderful job weaving a life experience into your life and now mine. These experiences have obviously made you who you are and conversely who you are, has made the experience. I look forward to listening to many more podcasts.

At first glance, it might appear that Hammad Zaidi is one of the single luckiest people on the planet. And indeed, that might be at least a little bit true! But on deeper examination, Limping on Cloud 9 is a testament to the power of grit, determination, and visualization. As well as having the courage to step out of one's comfort zone, move past uncertainty and fear, and embrace with an open heart and mind, new opportunities and adventures! Great stuff!

Hammad, you're a really good story teller. I don't know whether you know, but my dad was a good story teller too. He used to entertain us with stories of his youth, and of his WWII years, working for Boeing aircraft. I was touched by your comments in your podcast about my parents. Your family must have been puzzled that I did not cry the day of mom's funeral. I did my mourning during Dad and her last few years of decline, and I still have unexpected moments when I suddenly feel loss and tears. But that day, I was just glad for Mom's release. It's good to know that Mom and Dad left you with such lasting memories.
